Training fees and price policy

The price of the training has been fairly calculated to cover costs of training, structure, food, wages of the cooks...

They are also based on your ability to pay, based on your household's income. We expect participants understanding and fair-play. If you are in the fortunate position of having chosen to stop working because of large savings or investments, we thank you for paying the higher rate.

Please, choose one of the four prices in regard to your situation

The remaining balance must be paid no later than 30 calendar days before the start of the training, unless a written agreement is reached with the organizers (e-mail). Failure to pay the balance in time will be considered as a cancellation.

If you register less than 30 days before the start of the training, all registration fees are to be paid directly.
